AN UMPIRE DEFEATED THEM

Unfair Decisions Gave the Visitors Advantage in Their Winning Runs.

The Home Team, However, Drives Them to Close Score-Washington with Healy Pitching Far Behind the Bostons-Ball Notes.

A most exasperating feature of yesterday's ball game, between the Indianapolis and Pittsburg teams, was the wretched work of Umpire Lynch. There was some brilliant and some indifferent playing by both clubs, but it was all overshadowed and lost sight of by those who tried to discover the intent of some of Lynch's remarkable decisions. How it is that a man who is so manifestly incapable can hold a position on the staff of League umpires is really inexplicable. He may be honest, and probably is, but that he is incompetent was apparent to anyone who saw the game yesterday. Lynch is a lordly individual, and carries things with a high hand, allowto question his decisions, no matter how radically wrong His work here last season was unsatisfactory and he certainly has not improved any. He has grown worse, if possible, because, last season he did show some interest in what was going on around him, while he seems to lack even that virtue now. Instead of being active, and making an effort to place himself in a position to be able to make his decisions with, at least, a slight degree of accuracy, he stands back of the plate making no effort to watch base decisions, as other umpires do. In short, Mr. Lynch is either lazy or stupid, and it is no sure thing that he is not both. The Indianapolis team was simply cheated out of yesterday's game by Lynch's indifference and total lack of judgment. The home club has long suffered by just such work, without making a protest, but it seems about time the matter and see that the Hoosiers are not almost daily made to submit to the miserable work of those whose salaries the club helps to pay.

The day was fine, and 1,200 spectators were out to see the game. It started off nicely for the local nine which held the lead up to the last inning, notwithstanding the impire clearly gave the visitors two runs in the seventh. Seery reached first on four bad balls and went to third on a wild for the management to assert its rights in four bad balls and went to third on a wild pitch. Glascock was thrown out by Dunlap. Hines got his base and stole second, and both came home on a two-bagger by Daily, who was in McGeachy's position, the latter being unable to play on account of a lame arm, the result of being hit by a pitched ball in Saturday's game. Meyers flew out to Staley. Buckley, who was playing third, Denny's injured ankle making it impossible for him to be in the game, made a hit, but Bassett sent a slow grounder to Dunlap and quit at first. The next two innings were blanks for the Hoosiers, but in the fourth another run was added. Scheneck got his base on balls, but was forced out at second by Shreve. Seery followed with a hit, and on Hanlon's muff of Glasscock's fly Shreve scored. Seery tried to do the same but was called out at the plate. Daily secured a single in the fifth, but was forced out at second by Meyers. The latter stole a base and crossed the plate on Buckle,'s hit. One more man made the circuit in the fifth, and there was no telling how many more would have done the same had not Lynch called Hines out on a claim that he did not touch first base when he made a two-bagger to center. Meyers, whose word is good, stood by the base, and declared that Hines did touch it, but Lynch said no, and the old man took his seat on the bench, much to the disgust of everybody. Daily made another single, but Meyers sent a slow grounder to short, and the runner got no further. Meyers stole second and scored on Buckley's hit. After Shreve and Seery had been retired in the fifth, Glasscock, Hines and Daffy made singles, on which the two first came home. After that Conway settled down, and proved a puzzler for the local batsmen, and they could get no one around the bases.

Pittsburg made two runs in the first on a Dunlap. Hines got his base and stole second. and both came could get no one around the bases.

Pittsburg made two runs in the first on a base on balls to Hanlon, and a home-run hit by Beckley. Hits by Sunday, Beckley and Carroll scored the first runner in the third. Carroll scored the first runner in the third. The next three innings were blanks. In the seventh Conway got his base on balls, and stole second. Meyers threw the ball to Glasscock, and, as Conway over-ran the base, he was caught at least three feet from it; but as the stupid and lazy Mr. Lynch did not think it necessary to run down to the base, he could not or did not see the play, and the runner was declared safe. Sunday then made a hit, and Conway came home. The next batter was retired, but Beckley followed with a single, and Sunday scored. Thus two men were allowed to tally when neither should have reached the plate. The next was a blank and the ninth opened with Indianapolis one ahead. Smith flew out to Hines and when Sunday Smith flew out to Hines and when Sunday was retired by Glasscock and Scheneck the crowd breathed easier. Hanlon, however, got his base on balls and Bassett fumbled Beckley's hard grounder, Dunlap was clearly struck out, but Mr. Lynch failed to see it, and when allowed another chance the batter made a hit and scored the two runs necessary to win.

The crowd was thoroughly disgusted, not with the playing of the home team, but the miserable work of the umpire, and many and strong were the maledictions heaped upon his head. The score:

CLEVELAND, 11; CHICAGO, 8. CLEVELAND, May 6 .- Stricker's play at second, and his execution with the ball were features of to-day's game between Cleveland and Chicago. Nearly all the Clevelanders found the ball, and the batting made the game quite interesting. O'Brien gave nine Chicago men their bases. and thus they were enabled to score eight runs. He was wild, but when the ball did go over the plate it was seldom hit. Score:

BOSTON, 23; WASHINGTON, 3. WASHINGTON, May 6 .- The defeat sustained by Washington at the hands of Boston to-day was probably the worst drubbing ever administered to a professional club representing this city. The heavy hitters of the visiting team gave an exhibition of batting that has seldom been seen here. Nineteen hits, with a total of twenty-eight bases, was the result of their stick work. Brouthers led the batting, making a double, a triple and a home run—the latter hit being over the center-field fence, a feat never before accomplished on the Cani feat never before accomplished on the Capi-

Orders. Washington Special.

When I went up to the White House this morning I was astonished at seeing about a dozen men with axes hacking away at the trunks of the most majestic and stateliest old trees in the White House grounds. I went up to Donnelly, the head gardener, and asked him what it all meant. All he said was: "The President's orders." dozen men set to work cutting it up into logs. In an hour the tree was being hauled away on half a dozen carts. Before night the six biggest trees in the White House grounds were turned into firewood. They were planted in 1832, fifty-seven years ago, by Andrew Jackson, who was then President of the United States. They are ailanthus trees, and the flowers have a horrible smell. The six trees were brought to this country by Commander Wilkins in 1832 from China, where they were presented to him by the Emperor.

For the past two weeks the presidential nose has been terribly offended by a smell that he imagined came from the Potomac flats or from the bad drainage of the White House. The President said nothing about the smell, but he was greatly annoyed by it, and if he went to the front of the house and looked out an open window he had to go way from it. The family also complained of the smell finally, and the windows of their sleeping apartments were kept closed on account of their bad odor. Finally the President complained to some of the White House attaches about the smell. When they told him where the smell came from he sent for the head gardener and told him to cut the tree down at once and to take up every inch of root, because the trees will spring up again if a vestige of the root is left in the ground. The men will have to dig up an area of 500 feet in order to exterminate all the roots. President Cleveland and Mrs. Cleveland, President Hayes and Mrs. Hayes, President Garfield and Mrs. Garfield and Arthur were all annoyed by the smell of the trees, but never thought of cutting them down. Grant was asked once if the smell annoyed him, and he said, pointing to the cigar: "I can't smell anything but this."

Puncturing a Free-Trade Campaign Lie.

Ohio was one of the States which the freetrade orators last year represented as "plastered over with farm mortgages," because of the iniquities of the tariff, and the amount of these mortgages was glibly placed at $701,000,000. But the official figures, just published, show that the total mortgage indebtedness on all real estate in the commonwealth city and county is only the commonwealth, city and county, is only $331,000,000, and of this total only $65,000,000 consists of liens on farms.

ELECTION IN THE SUBURBS.

Democrats Successful in Haughville, and, Except as to Treasurer, for West Indianapolis.

The suburban elections passed off quietly yesterday. Not a very full vote was polled in any of the corporations, and in only one or two were the party lines closely drawn. In none of the towns were the tickets in the field long before election day, and consequently but little work in the way of electioneering was done. In Haughville no regular Republican ticket was nominated. After the Democrats had made their nominations, a citizens' ticket was named, and received liberal support from those who did not like those chosen by the Demoeratic convention. As the corporation has always been Democratic, the entire has always been Democratic, the entire ticket of that party was, of course, elected. The citizens' ticket received the following vote: Fred Webber, trustee, 116; Charles Loomis, clerk and treasurer, 139; Geo. W. Dunn, marshal, 105. The following was the Democratic vote: Wood P. Canfield, trustee, 258; L. P. Hocker, clerk and treasurer, 232; Andrew P. Dillon, marshal, 256. Canfield's majority, 142; Hocker's, 93, and Dillon's 151.

Dillon's, 151.

In West Indianapolis the contest was spirited. Both parties were hopeful of sucspirited. Both parties were hopeful of success, and the interest taken in the result brought out something like a full vote.

Last year the Democrats elected their entire ticket by good majorities, but as some local issues were involved in this contest the Republican expected to be successful. The Democratic candidates, however, had the assistance of several party workers from the city, and they were enabled to elect the most of their ticket. The Republican candidate for treasurer, W. B. Reed, was elected by a majority of W. B. When the Democrats found, last night, that they had saved the greater part of their ticket, there was great rejoicing. They found a way to express their joy by firing an anvil at intervals until after midnight

The election in Woodruff Place attracted less attention than in any of the other suburban corporations. There was no politics in it. An agreed ticket was put in the field, and in the absence of opposition was, of course, elected. The new officers are as follows: Trustees, J. F. Burt, and F. D. Rogers. At Brightwood the Republicans were successful in electing the most important part of the ticket—the three trustees. For trustee in the First ward, H. Bloom was elected; in the Second, John Clark, and in the Third ward John Sears. Philip Hefferman, (D), was elected marshal over G. E. Gilchrist, (R), by a majority of 6; John Wineon, (D), clerk, over S. E. Thomas, (R), by a majority of 7, and John G. Swartz, (D), treasurer, over Chas. Pascall, (R), by a majority of 17.

HOW TO KEEP A TRIM FIGURE. An Aristocratic Carriage Is Within the Reach of Every American Girl. Women who wish to preserve the slimness and contour of their figure must begin by learning to stand well, says a writer in Dress. That is explained to mean the throwing forward and up-ward of the chest, the flattening of the back, with the shoulder blades held in their proper places and the definite curv-ing in of the small of the back, thus throw-ing the whole weight of the body upon the hips. No other women hold themselves so well as the aristocratic English women. Much of their beauty lies in their proud carriage, the delicate erectness of their figures and the fine poise of their heads.

The same aristocratic carriage is within the reach of any American girl who takes the pains to have it; it is only the question of a few years of eternal vigilance, never relaxing her watchfulness over herself, and, sitting or standing, always preserving her erectness and poise, the result being that at the end of that time it bas become second nature to her, and she never afterward loses it. This, in a great measure, preserves the figure, because it keeps the muscles firm and well strung, and prevents the sinking down of the fiesh around the waist and the hips, so common in women over thirty, and which it is perfectly easy to escape. Another thing to fectly easy to escape. Another thing to avoid is a bad habit of going upstairs, which most women do, bent forward, with the chest contracted, which, as well as an indolent, slouchy manner of walking, is injurious to the heart and lungs.

FOG HORNS IN CHURCH.

A Crusade Against the Well-Meaning Efforts of the Good Old Deacon. A gentleman writes to a Chicago paper complaining of a man with a fog-horn voice who occupied a seat near the middle of the central section in Grace M. E. Church in that city last Sunday evening and sang with such desperate energy that nobody within a circuit of ten feet around him could hear even the cornet or the organ. He asks if there is no way by which a living calliope, that roars as with a pressure of 100 pounds to the square inch, can have a "pp" stop affixed to it when it comes to church to take charge of the singing?

The Chicago Journal suggests no remedy, we regret to say. Nuisances of this character are not at all unknown in Pittsburg. Sometimes the dreadful being with the tremennous voice is a regular attendant at the church, and then again he is often an Ishmaelite who wanders from church to church A gentleman writes to a Chicago paper maelite who wanders from church to church spreading consternation wherever he goes. Generally the devastating howler is a man, but we have encountered more than one woman whose voice was too strong for any use but crushing stone, and whose persistent vocal efforts have destroyed the harmony and soul of an entire service.

Seriously speaking, a man or woman who habitually throws a divine service out of gear by his or her vocal bombardment is a fit subject for discipline, and if necessary expulsion, at the hands of the authorities of the church. Human calliopes are out of place where choral or congregational sing-ing is concerned. They are right handy in times of political excitement or as a stimu-lus to the sale of stale fish or unripe bananas.

A Tell-Tale Graphophone.

Electrical Review. Private Secretary Pearson, of Govern Beaver's office, Harrisburg, Pa., had a curious and somewhat startling experience with the graphophone. He began to turn the crank, and supposed that he was about to cause the machine to give out to the young lady type-writer a message which the Governor had talked into it the evening previous. The young lady was all attention, and the private secretary began solemnly to turn the crank, which works by a treadle. To his horror and the intense embarrassment of the young lady, the fol-lowing amorous jumble was given out with decided emphasis: "Now don't, George. * * * There; some-body will come. Of course I love you. There; somebody really is coming, and you have mussed my hair all up. * * Please, love. I'm so afraid that some one will come in, and, besides, I can't work this crank if you insist upon kissing me all the time." It was some little while before the matter could be satisfactorily explained, either by the young lady or Mr. Pearson, who at first was disposed to imagine that somebody had been playing a practical joke upon them. The matter was finally straightened out, however, when the executive clerk came around, and, upon hearing of the incident laughed heartily. He had on the evening before been always as his on the evening before been showing a bride and groom about the executive department, and, being called away a few minutes had left them in the private secretary's room to amuse themselves with the graphophone while he attended to the business which had called him away.

Pulling Teeth by Electricity.

Philadelphia Record. Boston people nowadays have their superfluous teeth drawn by electricity. The process is very simple, scarce any apparatus being required beyond an ordinary two-cell battery, with vibrator attachment. This attachment is a thin strip of metal fastened at the ends, which is made to vibrate a thousand or more times a second by the electric current. At each vibration the circuit is cut off and renewed again, the effect being to give a perfectly steady flow of the mys-sterious fluid. In order to make sure that sterious fluid. In order to make sure that the flow is quite satisfactory, the operator tunes the machine—assisted by a little reed tuning-pipe—until the strip of metal sings "A." Now, to the battery are attached three wires, two of them handles at the ends, and the third is hitched to a forceps. The patient in the chair is given a handle to hold in each hand, and the current is turned on gradually until it becomes painful. Then he is told to grasp the handle as strong as possible, the electricity—having been switched off for a moment—is turned on again suddenly, and the deptal surgeon and again suddenly, and the dental surgeon applies his forceps simultaneously to the tooth. The instant the molar is touched it, as well as the parts surrounding, becomes electrified and absolutely insensible to pain. When it is drawn from the socket the subject of the operation feels not the slightest disagreeable sensation. A jerk, and the tooth is out; the patient drops the electric handles, and the painless affair is
